How to use this guide

Flowers in this guide are arranged by color. Look for the flower color on the edge of the fold to quickly find the color of the flower you are trying to identify.

The common name appears in Bold type underneath the photo, and the scientific name appears in Italic. The months when the plant has been observed flowering are also listed. The name of the photographer appears in Small Gray type next to or on his or her image.

The Cache Corps of Discovery is comprised of local nature enthusiasts with a variety of experience and professional background who have completed a series of core classes in photography, sketching, and journaling. Their mission is to use their newfound skills in "communicating nature" to document the changing environment and biodiversity of the Cache River and surrounding habitats.
